NATHAN SEABOLT

Nathan has been scribbling since he was big enough to hold a crayon, as the repainted walls of his childhood home will attest. Since then he has graduated to more sophisticated tools such as Adobe Photoshop and Clip Studio Paint, but you can still catch him making marks with crayons, albeit now (mostly) on paper. He also graduated from the University of North Carolina with a B.A. in Studio Art; training he gleefully uses to create monsters and quirky characters.

Hallmarks of his work include detailed textures and lighting, semi- to full photorealism and a healthy dose of whimsy. His character design and visual storytelling skills have been featured in several graphic novel collaborations and commissions, including Sydney writer Karen Beilharz (MONSTERS!, Kinds Of Blue), the annual Sydney Comics Guild Anthology project and most recently on the Science Fiction comic Black & Blue, with creator Ben Quinlan.

Nathan is an American transplant, having lived and worked in Sydney since 2007. His childhood living in a small rural community surrounded by farmland often butts up oddly with his current situation living in an ultramodern multicultural metropolis like Sydney, and the juxtaposition often provides inspiration for his work. If he can continue to evade all the venomous wildlife in his new home, he will continue to produce memorable and affecting characters for many years to come.
